STAR 2011
Thanks to you, our members, volunteers, and staff, the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ just completed three of the most successful and exciting years ever, and my term as your chairman of the board couldn’t have ended on a better note. I hope you will enjoy reading about all the astonishing record-breaking numbers and fun facts and figures from the 2011 Show featured in this issue.

All of this success is a true testament to the hard work and dedication that our volunteers give so freely each and every year. Volunteers are the lifeblood of this organization, and I want to thank you personally for your commitment. This continued success is critical as we increase our commitment each year to the youth of Texas. In fact, summertime is scholarship time and it’s the part of the year when I reflect on our role in the community. We’ve impacted so many Texas families, and I have heard so many stories of how these young scholarship winners are the first in their families to attend college. You, as volunteers, can be proud of the investment you have made in the future leaders of our state. You have provided the labor, the money and the support to give these young people the opportunity to reach their educational goals.

As we transition to a new volunteer leader, I know that the Show will continue on this successful path with Steve Stevens as the new chairman of the board. I will continue my role here as an active member of the Show’s Executive Committee, and I remain committed to this wonderful organization and to its prosperous future.

Thank you all for choosing me to act as your chairman of the board these past three years. Paula and I look forward to seeing you at the 2012 Show and for many years to come!

RECORD ATTENDANCE SET
AS RODEOHOUSTON™ CROWNS NORTH AMERICA’S CHAMPIONS

The 79th edition of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ ended on a record-breaking run, with 2,262,834 in total attendance, all while showcasing North America’s champion athletes through the invitational RODEOHOUSTON BP Super Series and the inaugural Cinch RODEOHOUSTON Super Shootout.

ATTENDANCE HIGHLIGHTS

In addition to the record total attendance, RODEOHOUSTON paid attendance totaled 1,255,323 fans enjoying action-packed rodeo and superstars in concert. Five RODEOHOUSTON performances, featuring concerts by artists Brad Paisley (Third: March 19, 2011 – 73,825); Miranda Lambert (Fourth: March 16, 2011 – 73,811); La Arrolladora Banda El Limon and La Leyenda (Fifth: March 13, 2011 – 73,469); Selena Gomez (15th: March 6, 2011 – 72,709); and KISS (19th: March 15, 2011– 72,384), landed in the list of the Show’s top 20 paid Rodeo attendance records.

A record 244,184 people attended the World’s Championship Bar-B-Que Contest to help kick off the Show.

IN THE MEDIA

FOX Sports Houston, Southwest, South, and other FOX regions around the country, and FOX Sports International, aired two-hour live coverage of the RODEOHOUSTON BP Super Series Championship, Saturday, March 19, and the Cinch RODEOHOUSTON Super Shootout, Sunday, March 20. Additionally, FOXSportsHouston.com streamed all rodeo action live online from March 1 – 20, free for all viewers.

National media outlets, from newspapers to television programs, covered the Show extensively in 2011. The Wall Street Journal reported on the changes in the Rodeo, and Jimmy Fallon, host of “Late Night With Jimmy Fallon,” tried his hand at the calf scramble. Fallon’s Rodeo experience aired on his March 15 broadcast. The Show will be featured this summer and later this year on TLC’s “The Little Couple,” Animal Planet’s “Animal Cops,” and the Food Network’s “Outrageous Food,” and “Have Cake, Will Travel,” as well as on BBC Global News and Pentagon TV.
RODEOHOUSTON

The 2011 RODEOHOUSTON BP Super Series, an international, invitational championship, featured the world’s top 40 cowboys and top 50 cowgirls in seven events. With the entire purse provided by RODEOHOUSTON and no entry fees required by the athletes, contestants competed for a share of more than $1.5 million in prize money. Each event champion walked away from Reliant Stadium with at least $50,000, a RODEOHOUSTON trophy saddle, and a champion buckle. 2011 RODEOHOUSTON BP Super Series Champions, with total money earned, are:

- bareback riding: Clint Cannon – $58,900
- barrel racing: Jody Sheffiel – $55,400
- bull riding: Bobby Welsh – $61,350
- saddle bronc riding: Cort Scheer – $60,350
- steer wrestling: Stockton Graves – $58,450
- team roping: Tommy and Cody Doescher – $105,250
- tie-down roping: Shane Hanchey – $53,900

The Cinch RODEOHOUSTON Super Shootout: North America’s Champions debuted Sunday, March 20. This ground-breaking, invitation-only, one-day event featured champion athletes from the top 10 U.S. and Canadian rodeos. Participants competed in bareback riding, barrel racing, bull riding and saddle bronc riding for a total purse of $200,000, making the event the richest one-day rodeo. Each champion walked away with $25,000. 2011 Cinch RODEOHOUSTON Super Shootout Champions are:

- bareback riding: Will Lowe
- barrel racing: Sherry Cervi
- bull riding: Douglas Duncan
- saddle bronc riding: Cort Scheer

Before she took the stage Friday, March 4, Janet Jackson was presented a photo of her brothers as members of The Jackson 5 performing at RODEOHOUSTON in 1974. Janet’s performance was 37 years after her brothers took the stage.

Alan Jackson was inducted into the Show’s Star Trail of Fame Friday, March 18. Jackson is only the fifth entertainer in history to perform in front of 1 million RODEOHOUSTON fans. He first hit the rotating stage in 1992, and his March 18, 2011, performance marked his 19th appearance at RODEOHOUSTON.

The RODEOHOUSTON Sports Medicine Team was introduced in 2011, providing a comprehensive medical plan for all rodeo athletes competing at the Show. High-caliber sports medicine services were provided to all participants by emergency and orthopedic physicians, chiropractors, sports medicine trainers, and Safety Committee paramedics and EMTs.

SHOW HIGHLIGHTS

In 2011, the Show launched the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo free, custom mobile application. The app, available for iPhone and Android devices, is an electronic version of the Show’s visitor guide. The mobile app had more than 37,000 downloads.

Harry Pepper, the Show’s oldest volunteer and Calf Scramble Committee member, started the Saturday, March 5, calf scramble. Pepper, who is 100 years old, has been volunteering since the Show was held in the Sam Houston Coliseum.

RODEOHOUSTON rang The Closing Bell® for the New York Stock Exchange Friday, March 18 in RODEOHOUSTON style, with a bull rider bursting out of the chute atop a bucking bull.

Two of the Show’s entertainers brought unique patriotic touches to their performances. Kid Rock’s saxophonist played “The Star Spangled Banner,” bringing the huge crowd to its feet to sing the national anthem in the middle of the concert. KISS asked the sold-out crowd of 72,384 to stand and say the pledge of allegiance, with another enthusiastic response.

NOTABLE NUMBERS

- More than 281,700 people rode Rodeo Express shuttles from five locations.
- In the Capital One Bank AGVENTURE Birthing Center, 65 piglets, 20 lambs and 15 calves were born during the Show. In the Poultry Exhibit, more than 180 chicks were hatched.
- A new soil exhibit allowed visitors the chance to get up close to earthworms and learn how to plant seeds.
- More than 187,000 stuffed animals were won at the games in the carnival.
- More than 20,000 young cowboys and cowgirls took a ride at the pony rides.
- More than 23,000 people visited the butterfly house.
- More than 9,000 children rolled around the water in giant bubbles.

The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo just experienced three of its most successful years ever, all with Charles R. “Butch” Robinson at the reins. His spirit and dedication to the youth of Texas led this amazing organization down a trail full of notable achievements.

During Robinson’s tenure:
- Two of the three years recorded the highest operating revenue in Show history.
- Total attendance hit the 2 million mark in 2010 and 2011.
- The Rodeo paid attendance record from 2003 was broken with 1,264,074 Rodeo fans in 2010.
- Annual memberships increased by 4,000 people and 1,600 life members were added.
- Four-year scholarships were raised to $16,000 awards.
- Enormous advancements in rodeo were made, with the RODEOHOUSTON™ BP Super Series, the debut of the Cinch RODEOHOUSTON Super Shootout and the creation of the RODEOHOUSTON Sports Medicine Team.
- The Show conducted a comprehensive economic impact study, which notes that because the Show exists, annual gross sales are increased by nearly half a billion dollars in the Houston area.
- The Show’s scholarship application and judging process were streamlined.

For two years, Robinson helped ring The Closing Bell® of the New York Stock Exchange at the Show, and hosted notable dignitaries such as the president of Honduras.

Like many other native Houstonians, Robinson’s introduction to the Show came as a child, when he attended the Houston Fat Stock Show at the Sam Houston Coliseum. His official involvement with the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo began after he purchased a ranch in 1983. Needing to buy cattle, Robinson attended the Show and bought several bulls. With those purchases, he decided to become more involved and joined that year as a life member. In 1988, Robinson became a volunteer, joining the Range Bull and Commercial Heifer Committee. He has since served on the Cutting Horse (chairman), Grand Entry (vice chairman) and Resource Renewal committees. He was elected to the board of directors in 1997.

From 2001 to 2003, he served as a vice president of the Show, and was officer in charge of the Agricultural Mechanics, All Breeds Livestock Sales, Junior Commercial Steer Feeding and Management Contest, and Trail Ride committees. Robinson was elected to the Show’s Executive Committee beginning in 2006, where he served as chairman of the Executive Committee’s audit subcommittee and as a member of the Rodeo Institute for Teacher Excellence™ board of directors.

Robinson is a graduate of Rice University and is active in the Rice University “R” Association as well as the Owl Club. When he is not working on behalf of the Show, he is self-employed in the oil and gas industry and is a rancher with a cow/calf and horse operation.

Robinson lives in Houston with his wife, Paula, a Houston native who is a life member of the Show and is a member of the Trailblazer Committee. For many years, they have been champion buyers at several of the Show’s auctions, including the Junior Market Lamb, Poultry and Steer auctions. They have three children, Monica, Ashley and Andy, who are all life members of the Show. Monica serves on the Breeders Greeters and Rodeo Uncorked! Wine Events committees, Ashley is on the Parade Committee, and Andy is a member of the Mutton Bustin’ Committee.

As Robinson passes the reins to the next chairman of the board, Show officials, volunteers, exhibitors and contestants can be confident that the Show has been positioned for continued success.
David Boothe

David Boothe became involved with the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ almost 30 years ago when friends asked him to join the International Committee. Boothe honored that suggestion and went on to serve on several other committees, including Calf Scramble Donors, Rodeo Merchandise, Speakers and Wine.

As vice president, Boothe served as officer in charge of the Agricultural Mechanics, Information Services, International, Lamb and Goat Auction, and Western Art committees.

Boothe said the most enjoyable part about serving as vice president of the Show was having the opportunity to travel to all the different colleges and meeting the scholarship recipients.

Reflecting on his time as vice president, Boothe said he will always remember the friendships he made and how hard the committee members worked.

“It has been amazing the relationships that have developed over time between the officers I’ve served with,” Boothe said.

Boothe will remain on the International Committee with his wife, BJ, and daughter, DeeAnne Navarre. They have a trip scheduled to Canada this summer with the committee to promote the Show. His son, Greg, is on the Equipment Acquisition Committee, and his grandson, Dennis Robbins, is a member of the Agricultural Mechanics Committee.

Now that his tenure is complete, Boothe said he hopes to continue to serve the Show in any way he can. Boothe is president of Landmark Interest Corporation, a Baytown-based construction business, and has been in the construction industry for more than 40 years.

George A. Buschardt

According to George Buschardt, his tenure as vice president went by like “greased-lightning.” He first joined the Show in 1972, and served as a member of the Hospitality Committee, a charter member of the Rodeo Merchandise Committee, and chairman of the Membership Committee.
As officer in charge, he oversaw the Events and Functions, Houston Metro Go Texan, Jr. Rodeo and Membership committees.

Buschardt said when he looks back at his time as vice president, he will always remember traveling to meet the scholarship recipients.

"Being able to meet these amazing kids and seeing where all your time and effort goes — it was a truly remarkable experience," Buschardt said.

His wife, Sharon, is on the Poultry Auction and School Art Auction committees. His son George Jr. is on the Agricultural Mechanics, Hospitality and Mutton Bustin’ committees, and his son Matt also is on the Hospitality Committee. His daughter Sheila serves on the Houston Metro Go Texan Committee, and his daughter Stacey Markham is on the Jr. Rodeo and School Art Auction committees. His late son-in-law, Tom Markham, was a life member of the Show for more than 26 years and served on the Grand Entry Committee and as chairman of the Corral Club – The Hideout Committee.

Buschardt plans to stay involved with several committees. He owns and runs an insurance adjustment company, Buschardt Claim Service. He said he definitely had to put in earlier hours during the Show to be able to “burn the candle at both ends.”

Realizing the importance of recognizing the major supporters of Show auctions, he also helped in the creation of the Silver Spur Club.

Davis served as officer in charge of the Equipment Acquisition, Rabbit, Steer Auction and Veterinarian committees.

Now that his tenure as vice president is complete, Davis said he will remember fondly being able to meet the scholarship recipients and their families firsthand and getting to hear their stories.

Davis plans to remain on the Steer Auction and Rodeo Uncorked! Wine Events committees, and will become a member of the Lifetime Vice Presidents Committee. He has two children: Thomas, who travels to the Show each year from his home in Colorado; and Elizabeth, who is a member of the Rodeo Uncorked! Wine Events Committee. Davis owns a construction company with his brother, Bob.

“I love the Rodeo and everything it stands for,” Davis said. “Best years of my life. The good Lord has blessed me with the time and money to help others.”

For lifelong educator Warner Ervin, becoming involved with the Show’s continuing contributions to youth and education was a natural fit. Ervin has been a life member of the Show for the past 16 years, since he first joined the Black Heritage Committee. Ervin served the Show as officer in charge of the Black Heritage, Ladies’ Go Texan, Speakers and Special Attractions committees.

“My time as vice president was one of the most rewarding experiences of my life,” Ervin said. “Being able to visit the colleges and universities, the 4-H and FFA summer conventions, and seeing all the future leaders, was an experience no one can truly describe.”

Ervin will continue to be involved with several committees and says he will work hard to get more people involved with the Show. “We can always use more people with their hearts in the right place,” Ervin said.
His wife, Melba, is on the Calf Scramble Donors Committee and assists in evaluating Show scholarships. They have a daughter, Mauri; a son, Warner II, who is on the Grand Entry Committee; and four grandchildren. All actively attend the Show.

“The Show is fun-filled for the youngsters, but is also truly educational,” Ervin said. “They are able to obtain experiences they wouldn’t have any other way. It’s not just about livestock, it’s about leadership.”

Ervin is the retired South Regional Superintendent for the Houston Independent School District.

Tom Lippincott

Tom Lippincott called joining the Show a “no brainer” upon returning to Houston after spending four years away at college. He understood the importance of education after receiving his and felt the urge to get involved with other people who felt the same way.

He joined the Show as a life member in 1991 and joined his first committee, Breeders Greeters, three years later, where he met his wife, Courtney. They now have two boys, Merritt, 7, and Wiley, 5. Courtney is still involved with the Show and Merritt has tried his talents at mutton bustin’.

In 2003, Lippincott joined the Gatekeepers Committee as a charter member, and served as chairman from 2006 to 2008. He said he will remember most the opportunities he had to travel throughout Texas to meet and get to know scholarship recipients. He said he remembers them all fondly and could tell stories about them for hours.

“We have all made so many Rodeo friends the past three years and I feel incredibly fortunate to have had the opportunity to serve as a vice president in such a meaningful and rewarding organization,” Lippincott said.

He served as officer in charge of the Directions & Assistance, Gatekeepers, Grand Entry, Premium Seating, Rodeo Express, Ticket Services, Tours and Transportation committees.

Lippincott said he will remain on committees now that his tenure is up, but he admits he is looking forward to actually being able to watch more of the Rodeo with his family.

Ken McGuyer

The 2011 Show marked Ken McGuyer’s 30th year, but he didn’t have much time to celebrate. McGuyer was busy serving as officer in charge of the Corral Club and all its 2,300 members.

McGuyer joined the Show in 1981, and soon found himself on the Corral Club Skybox Committee. A few years later, he joined the Grand Entry Committee, which he has been on for 20 years. McGuyer served as general chairman of the Corral Club before being named vice president.

McGuyer said he will always remember having the opportunity to travel to all the colleges and universities throughout Texas, meeting the young men and women who receive scholarships from the Show.

“Those are the most fantastic, well-mannered and intelligent kids,” McGuyer said. “I wish everybody could meet those kids.”

He also reflected on the great friends he has made and their deep and long-lasting friendships. “Years ago, a chairman of the board was giving a speech and said, ‘You got to be careful, the Rodeo will change your life,’ and it did. It has changed my life,” he said.

Now that his tenure as vice president is up, McGuyer will spend his time on the Grand Entry and the Rodeo Contestant Hospitality committees, along with focusing on his business. McGuyer is president of an industrial refrigeration company and said during Show, things could get pretty hectic trying to balance the two.

His wife, Debbie, is involved with the Show as well and serves on the Trailblazers Committee and also has served time on the Corral Club committees.
James R. “Dick” Graves, the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™’s 16th president who served from 1991 to 1993, passed away Aug. 18, 2008, and is remembered for many accomplishments. During his tenure, the Show hosted prominent events for the Economic Summit of Industrialized Nations, expanded to the Astroarena, and doubled the size of its membership.

Graves was recently honored for his role in one significant project — the Show’s acquisition, in the early 1990s, of a large amount of undeveloped land on Reed Road, just outside 610 Loop. This land, which has played a vital role in the Show’s ability to grow over the past 15 years, has now been officially named Dick Graves Park.

On Thursday, Feb. 24, 2011, just in time for the start of the 2011 Show, a ribbon cutting ceremony for the official naming and dedication of the site was held. Visitors to Dick Graves Park are now greeted by an entrance that includes large metal gates, towering, stone-wrapped columns, and a grand metal arch overhead that bears the name, “Dick Graves Park” with the “Bowlegged H” logo on each side of the park’s name.

Numerous family members attended the ceremony, including Graves’ widow, Betty Ann; sons John, Larry, and Jimmy Jr.; daughter, Libby; Graves’ brother, Donald; nephew Ken; and several grandchildren, great grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

McMahon recalled Graves’ philosophy about maintaining the enthusiasm of the Show’s volunteer force. “Graves believed that everyone should have fun, perform their assigned Rodeo duties, socialize at the end of the day, and feel good for helping the youth of Texas,” he said.

Leroy Shafer, the Show’s chief operating officer, who enjoyed a 38-year friendship with Graves, said, “Dick Graves was known for saying that the Houston Livestock Show needed to ‘build constituency.’”

Graves believed that those directly involved with the Show would not only support the Show’s activities, but also would contribute greatly to the Show’s financial success. Under his leadership, the Show eliminated the limits on the number of tickets available as season ticket packages and also eased restrictions on the number of committeemen and committees. Today, a majority of the Show’s ticket purchases and revenues come from Show members.

Graves understood that the growth of the Show would create ever-increasing demands for space, and ultimately, a need for off-site space. Beginning under his leadership, the Show contracted to purchase, over a period of time from 1990 to 1995, a number of parcels of land near or adjacent to Reed Road. The land from those purchases, minus that dedicated to easements and roadways, exceeds 300 acres — almost an incomprehensible amount of contiguous, undeveloped and largely unimproved acreage just outside the 610 Loop.

“I don’t know what we would have done without utilization of the property during the construction years at Reliant Park,” Steffek said. “Today, Dick Graves Park is used for World’s Championship Bar-B-Que Contest staging, Rodeo Express, junior exhibitor staging, livestock and horse show trailer parking, carnival equipment storage and housing, rodeo contestant trailer parking and horse stalling, and rodeo rough stock penning and feeding.”

Even those friends of the Show who have visited or parked at the site are unlikely to appreciate its vastness. At first, the site appears to extend only to the fence behind the parking and RV area, but that’s only the beginning. A gate at the southwest corner of that parking area opens to a road leading into a huge expanse of land that is improved with corrals, grazing areas and semi-permanent structures.

“What a wonderful tribute to my husband,” Betty Ann said. “My family and I appreciate the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo creating this impressive and lasting remembrance to Dick. He would not have wanted his name on it, as he never wanted to be recognized for any of his accomplishments, but the family is proud that he has been remembered in this way.”

By Todd Zucker
The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ lost one of its great leaders when Stuart Lang passed away April 19, 2011. Lang provided exemplary service to the Show for more than half a century and served as the Show’s seventh president. Among his many accomplishments, Lang will perhaps be best remembered for helping guide the Show during the move from the Sam Houston Coliseum to what was then called, the Astrodome. Without Lang’s vision and decision to champion this move, the Show could never have attained its current size and success.

Lang’s Show career began in the 1950s, and his piercing blue eyes, warm smile and gentle manner, combined with his business abilities and work ethic, helped him advance through the Show’s ranks. Lang was elected to the board of directors in 1959, served as a vice president in 1960 and 1962, and was secretary in 1963. In 1964, he took the reins of the Show during a challenging period in its history, and he served as president until 1966. Lang also was a member of the Show’s Executive Committee until the time of his death.

When Lang was elected president of the Show in 1964, the livestock show had been held at the downtown Sam Houston Coliseum for a number of years, and the horse show was being held at Pin Oak Stables. Both events were rapidly outgrowing — some would say had already outgrown — their respective venues. Lang’s predecessor had been exploring the concept of moving the Show to a large tract near the intersection of the North 610 Loop and Hwy. 290, with a proposal to construct an 18,000-seat arena, and the Show had actually broken ground on the development in 1963.

Once elected president, Lang made a pivotal decision to change course. Lang did not believe the new venue would generate sufficient income to justify its cost, or that the site could handle the Show’s future growth. Lang forcefully voiced his concerns to the Show’s board of directors and backed up those concerns with concrete financial projections. The board voted to halt construction. Lang faced continuing pressure from city officials, as well as some Show officials to select a new venue in the downtown area. Instead, he determined the best course of action would be to partner with Harris County with the building of the Domed Stadium, which was then in the planning stages and later would become known as the Astrodome. Lang knew that venue would accommodate all of the Show’s then-current needs for parking, seating and amenities, as well as growth for the foreseeable future. At his urging, the Show’s Executive Committee met with Houston Sports Association officials and negotiated an agreement to build a new facility adjacent to the Astrodome.

Lang faced enormous pressure to reconsider this course of action, but he remained committed. “He was having a terrifically hard time,” said Executive Committee member Louis M. Pearce Jr. “A lot of people were opposed to the move and thought we were not big enough to handle it, but we were. The thing they couldn’t see is how large the Show could actually be. We can see that now. It is marvelous what he did."

Pearce remembered Lang as a true leader. “Stuart was a great man — a man’s man. His leadership got us where we are today. He did an excellent job as president,” Pearce said.

HSA completed the Astrodome in 1965, and the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo completed construction on the 12-acre Livestock Exhibition Building — familiarly known to Houstonians as the Astrohall — in 1966, just in time for the 34th Show, held during Lang’s final term as Show president. The opening night performance had more than 20,000 attendees but was eclipsed by the first Friday-night crowd of 40,000 — five times the capacity of the Coliseum. One of Lang’s guests, Edgar Brown, whom Lang referred to as “Mr. Edgar,” remarked that the crowd was a record that would never be broken. Lang responded by saying, “Mr. Edgar, if they don’t, I’ve made the biggest mistake of my life.”

History has proved that Lang’s vision was correct, and the Show continued to break records year after year. In 1993, in honor of Lang’s accomplishments, artist Mark Storm created a bronze sculpture, which is currently located in Carruth Plaza, depicting Lang, towering over the Astrodome, Astrohall and Astroarena.

Lang’s son, Stuart Lang III, recalled his father’s fondness of speaking with people at the Show. “He was always approachable. He might not agree with you all the time, but you always knew where he stood,” the younger Stuart said. He looked up to his father and is extremely proud of his accomplishments. He also fondly remembers one of Lang’s most memorable attributes — his wit, which remained even during Lang’s last days. Several days before Lang’s death, he heard an ambulance driving by his room at Houston Hospice with its sirens blaring. Lang said, “Tell him to circle the block. I’m not ready yet.”

Lang will be missed greatly, and even those people who never had the chance to meet him benefit from his extraordinary vision and his courage to take it forward.
GATEKEEPERS
By Allyson Bandy

Every year the volunteers of the Gatekeepers Committee create a welcoming atmosphere by greeting more than 2 million Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ guests passing through 13 perimeter gates and eight Reliant Stadium gates. Verifying proper access and credentials through all entrance points into the Show, the Gatekeepers Committee works every hour the Show is open for business, from the start of the World’s Championship Bar-B-Que Contest in February, to the close of the last Rodeo performance in March.

Before the formation of the Gatekeepers Committee in 2002, contracted labor was hired to perform gate operations. With the creation of this committee, approximately $750,000 is saved per year.

“Working with all the hard-working and dedicated volunteers for the common goal of saving money for the Show and raising scholarship money is the most enjoyable part about working with the Gatekeepers,” said Wesley Sinor, committee chairman.

While the Gatekeepers Committee has grown in manpower throughout the years, the committee also has progressed from using walk-through turnstiles to handheld scanners as the mechanism for counting visitors.

In recent years, the committee spread its footprint to include the access points to Reliant Stadium, proving to be a valuable asset for the Show.

Today the Gatekeepers Committee has grown into one of the largest Show committees. Currently, the committee consists of 1,330 volunteers among 22 teams.

You can spot each committee member during the Show wearing a black cowboy hat or Gatekeepers Committee ball cap, a white collared shirt, blue jeans, black boots and a Gatekeepers jacket or vest. The Gatekeepers are ready to assist Show patrons at a moment’s notice, from providing directions to managing the action and chute seats.

SPECIAL CHILDREN’S
By Becky Lowicki

Started more than 50 years ago with the help of the current chairman’s grandmother, the Special Children’s Committee provides the best Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ experience possible for children with special needs.

“We do whatever we can to bring a smile to their faces and make their experience at the Rodeo a wonderful memory,” said committee chairman Claire Stuewer, whose father also served as a chairman of the committee.

Comprised of 140 volunteers, the process begins with interviews of area agencies for special needs clients to assess which ones can best be accommodated, with more than 95 organizations participating each year.

Fellow committee member Stacy Anderson, teacher at a school for children with learning differences, said, “The committee is a wonderful ambassador in the community. It shows how the Rodeo is giving back in more ways than just the incredible scholarships they provide.”

The committee hosts guests at RODEOHouston™ performances and facilitates group day tours, where the children visit Capital One Bank AGVENTURE to see the animals up close and experience life on the farm.

The committee also manages the Lil’ Rustlers Rodeo and the Top Hands Horse Show, both of which are unique experiences developed especially for special needs individuals.

The Top Hands Horse Show is held in conjunction with 20 therapeutic riding clubs. More than 200 riders participate and compete in categories such as showmanship, barrels, trails, and more.

“Watching them compete is amazing, as the motion of the horse is especially therapeutic in helping them with their disability,” said Stuewer.

At the Lil’ Rustlers Rodeo, the children are paired with a VIP partner and receive a contestant number just like the real cowboys and cowgirls, and they participate in a play-rodeo experience.

“The committee provides [participants] with opportunities to participate in the Rodeo in a positive and loving atmosphere, and what could be better than that,” Anderson said.
