

2027 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™ ICC Individual Competition

2027 ICC Individual Competition

The Industrial Craft Competition (ICC) is a program sponsored by The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo™, with the aim of fostering development of industrial craft skills for students enrolled in career and technical education programs from schools across Texas.

In addition to the team competition at the Rodeo, ICC also hosts an individual competition in the spring. The individual competition takes place at Texas State Technical College, and is focused on high school seniors who are ready to enter the workforce.

Competitors are required to follow drawings and weld to spec in one of three categories - pipe welding, structural welding, or pipe fitting. They are independently judged by industry professionals. Student awards include trophies, tools, and recognition. During the day, they also have access to companies showcased in the ICC Career Corral.

ICC Career Corral

Come meet with Texas's top upcoming talent in the industry! Showcase your company at the individual competition and connect with students who are ready to enter the workforce. These students have been exposed in-depth to many facets of the industry and are excited to interview for workforce entry. This is your chance to support the next generation in craft labor and communicate opportunities in your organization.

Showcase your company in the ICC Career Corral for a minimum cash or in-kind donation of $250.

“If you're in the trades industry, this is all about how to make this industry stronger, how to fill those jobs, how to get people there, how to prepare students coming out of school. Even if there's 15 kids that come out of ICC every year that go into the industry, that's 15 kids that may not have gone that pathway. That's 15 less jobs you have to fill.
